State of the Kingdom-Hezekish's father, Ahaz, was one of the worst kings of Judah. He introduced idolatry, he shut up the temple, discontinued the religious services, sacrificed his children to idols. His kingdom was ravaged by Pekah, king of Israel. The Philistines took possession of a large portion of the kingdom;

the sacred treasures of the temple were sent as tribute to the king of Assyria.

(See II Kings xvi; III Chron. xxviii.) Helps over Hard Places-1. Hezekiah, the thirteenth king of Judah, was the son of Ahaz. His mother's name is mentioned probably to express her influence for good over the king. Daughter of Zechariah: probably Isaiah's friend (Isa. viii, the same man who was an influential counselor of Hezekiah's grandfather, Uzziah. (II Chron. xxvi, 5.) 3. (4) Invitations sent out far and wide (xxx, 1, 11). Not only Judah, but all Israel, from Beersheba to Dan was invited to join in a great celebration of the passover. Messengers with letters Quite a large number accepted, but more mocked and laughed the messengers to scorn. Within a few years Israel, who rejected this invitation, was carried into final captivity. (5) Great meetings (xxx, 15.27); the next month a great passover feast was held for fourteen days with Solomon." Continued meetings and great assemblies are the fruit and the means of revival. (8) Regular support of divine worship (II Chron. xxxi, 3-6). (9) Great improvement in morals (II Chron. xxxi, 20,21). (10) Great outward prosperity (II Chron. xxxii, 27).

How to Study This Lesson.

This lesson includes the whole history of Hezekiah, and to understand it will require the reading of the whole history in II Chron., xxix-xxxii, and II Kings, xviii and xx, and Isa., xxxvi and xxxviii. Look at the chart of chronology and see what is going on in the kingdom of Israel, at the same time with this lesson, which belongs to the kingdom of Judah. Note great declension of religion in Judah. Hezekiah's father, Ahaz, injured the kingdom very much. He closed the temple, he broke up the sacred vessels and set up idol altars in Jerusalem and in Hezekiah was the good son of a bad father. We need not be evil because our surroundings are bad. The king moved the people to new interest and zeal in serving God and God sent His spirit upon as God has promised. Illustration: The work of revivals is well illustrated by the process of agriculture. There must be cutting down weeds ploughing, picking up stones, clearing the round. But this destroying process will ever make a fruitful field. There must

Hezekiah. Then followed great outward prosperity,

-e seed-sowing in order to have a harvest, and there must be culture careful and continued, enriching of the soil, gathering in the harvests. But all this is in vain without the gift of life from God.

TRIUMPHANTLY ACQUITTED.

A Bemarkable Scene in a New York Court Room.

New York, May 27 .- Pasquelna Robertello, the Italian girl who shot her lover to death because he outraged her person and then refused to keep his promise of marriage, was today acquitted. One of the most affecting and exciting scenes ever witnessed in a New York court room occurred on the announcement of the verdict. When the clerk asked the usual question of the foreman he almost shouted "Not guilty!" and, without waiting for a poll of their names, the jury shouted in unison: "Not guilty!" "Not guilty!"

The scene which followed beggars description. Men jumped upon the seats waving hats and handkerchiefs, and yelled and cheered; nor was there much effort made to restrain them.
